GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, the State of Wyoming values her children above all else; and

WHEREAS, the citizens of Wyoming recognize that the ability of their children to read is the cornerstone to their success in life; and

WHEREAS, there are many individuals across the State who are dedicated to improving literacy and the quality of life of our children; and

WHEREAS, I join the citizens of the State of Wyoming in saluting those dedicated professionals and volunteers who work for the cause of literacy in our communities.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, MATTHEW H. MEAD, GOVERNOR, do hereby proclaim May 17, 2011, in the State of Wyoming as and urge all citizens to join the celebration of literacy known as "Wyoming Reads" being held on that date with over 7,500 first grade students across Wyoming!

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Executive Seal of the Governor of Wyoming to be affixed this 1st day of May, 2011.

Matthew H. Mead
